This week's Nook Activity is here!

Pick up a printed copy of our step-by-step guide outside of the OHP or swipe through our IG/FB story to learn more!
Journaling works on multiple levels:

It allows us to express our emotions, which can support our well-being by letting us organize thoughts and feelings on paper.

This prevents thoughts from taking up room in our heads, and gives us a chance to reflect on the idea of cause and effect in our own experiences.

Journaling also helps ease our distress when we’re struggling, and has even been shown to improve immune system health!
There is no one right way to journal. Here are a few prompts for different types of journaling -- explore which is right for you!

EXPRESSIVE WRITING

To do this, you write continuously for 20 minutes (or however long feels right to you!) about your deepest thoughts and emotions around an issue in your life.

LYNDA BARRY LIST-MAKING JOURNALING

1) Make 2 columns & divide them horizontally. Write the date at the top.
2) In the top rows, write 7 things you saw and 7 things you did
3) In the bottom rows, write one thing you heard and one thing to draw.

BULLET JOURNALING

Log your calendar events, to-do lists, and diary entries in one place!

To learn more about the BuJo technique, scan the QR code below.

ONE LINE A DAY

Write one line (anything!) on each page of the journal every day of the year. Each year, you return to the page for that date and add a new line.

To learn more about this style of journaling, check out OHP’s tabling event during Week 9 outside Sayles.
Connect with OHP!

Social Media

@carletonswas

Carleton SWAs

Carleton College
Office of Health Promotion

go.carleton.edu/ohp

Sign up for our Newsletter

Scan this QR code to sign up for our weekly SWA newsletter, providing OHP updates and information about activities offered by our office!